

On Kingdom Boundaries

5/24/21

In one part

By Blair Krueger

It is not without some sense of loss that I find myself leaving Kingdom Boundaries in the morning. I hesitate to call it bittersweet, as what I feel has no bitterness about it. Rather, it is the mild sorrow of moving away from a new, but good friend.

When the DOC's plans for my parole went suddenly awry, I found myself allowed to come to KB when the prison had told me "no" twice before.

I believe God was letting me know that He engineered this, as I had already exhausted every earthly avenue I could think of to be allowed to come to KB.

I have come to consider Jeff, Rhonda, Kevin, and Tim my friends. Family in Christ. While here I have experienced sincere care for my well being - spiritual, physical, emotional, financial, and legal.

The staff provides concise, effective guidance and assistance with any number of real world concerns and responsibilities.

What staff does to help us seems clearly born out of a commitment to living out God's callings for them. Through our walk together they remain Christ-focused, and encourage us to do likewise.

While possessing compassion and understanding, staff is clear that we are to live in accordance with God's word, the laws of the land, and the rules and terms we agree to when joining KIBPA. Consequences for choices and actions exist, as they should.

I feel welcome in any office at KB, and -and this is important- the earnestness and Christian caring of the staff helped me feel coming to them with any problem, struggle, fear or confusion I might have. Coming out of years in a place that is often cold and impersonal, I cannot overstate how much of a blessing this is.

Kingdom Boundaries has fostered in me a sense of confidence, self-worth, and belonging, which I have no doubt will be paramount in my success on parole, in life, and as a Christian.

I find such things in Christ Jesus, to whom KIBPA is constantly and consistently pointing us.

May God bless you all for whatever involvement you have in this program.

Sincerely,

Blair Krueger

Blair Krueger

214 Lakeside Lane

Pierre, SD 57501